Summary

I am a Sociology major at Lady Brabourne College, with Political Science and Women's Studies as my minors. Alongside my degree, I am currently pursuing a Diploma in Public Relations and Advertising, which I will complete by the end of this year.

I have a strong passion for writing essays and analyses on sociological topics, integrating perspectives from psychology, philosophy, and literature. My approach involves identifying patterns in society and critically analyzing the works of various authors to develop deeper insights into human behavior, culture, and social structures.

With my background in sociology, public relations, and marketing, I am passionate about research, behavioral studies, branding strategies, and social development. My goal is to apply my interdisciplinary knowledge to fields like social psychology, business development, digital marketing, public relations, or research-oriented roles.
