PROFILE SUMMARY

Passionate about driving social change, I am a highly motivated individual with a deep curiosity for understanding societal issues and finding impactful solutions. Equipped with strong research and documentation skills, I am eager to work with communities and children to create meaningful change. With a natural ability to analyze data, engage with diverse groups, and advocate for justice, I thrive in dynamic environments that challenge me to think critically and act responsibly. Committed to learning and growing, I am excited to contribute to CRY's mission and make a lasting difference.

WORK EXPERIENCE

- Though I have no official or certified work experience, my 8 years as a student in a government residential school, living with 600-700 individuals from diverse backgrounds, have given me exceptional communication, adaptability, and conflict-resolution skills.
- Developed a deep understanding of human behavior, allowing me to connect with people from different personalities, struggles, and past experiences.
- Naturally skilled at quick learning and practical problem-solving, making me highly capable of handling dynamic environments.

WHY I DESERVE TO BE SELECTED

- Real-Life Experience Over Traditional Work - Unlike theoretical exposure, I have lived and learned first-hand from a diverse, challenging environment, shaping me into someone who understands society at its core.
- Fast Learner with a Maturity Beyond My Age - My background has taught me resilience, patience, and emotional intelligence, allowing me to quickly adapt, analyze, and contribute effectively.
- Driven by Purpose, Not Just Opportunity - I am not just looking for an internship; I want to be part of meaningful change. My instinct to connect, communicate, and understand people makes me a natural fit for CRY's mission.
