

SUMMARY

With a background in Sociology and Psychology, I am deeply interested in understanding the dynamics of building successful businesses. Through my academic journey, I have gained valuable insights into human behavior, motivation, and organizational structures, which I believe are crucial in driving business growth and development. I am eager to apply these skills in a Business Development context, leveraging my knowledge to contribute to strategic decision-making and growth initiatives. Additionally, my understanding of Computer Science has equipped me with the ability to conduct effective market analysis and interpret survey data, further enhancing my capacity to support data-driven business strategies. I am excited about the opportunity to apply my interdisciplinary skills and insights in the business development space, and contribute to creating impactful growth strategies.
