Career Objective

An undergraduate student pursuing a degree in Liberal Arts, with a strong interest in prehistoric and ancient history, especially how early civilisations, cultures, and belief systems have shaped our world today. This curiosity has evolved into a growing passion for historical archaeology. Looking to build a career that combines academic learning with a curiosity about different religions, traditions, and ways of life. A background in artistic gymnastics, music, and active school involvement reflects a blend of discipline, creativity, and a strong desire to learn. Open to opportunities that support growth through hands-on experience, research, and meaningful engagement with people, cultures, and history.
