I aspire to pursue an MBA not just for personal growth, but to gain the skills and mindset necessary to drive meaningful change in society. Having grown up believing that life is often unfair, I've always chosen kindness - offering empathy and support to people around me, regardless of their circumstances. This perspective fuels my desire to contribute to communities, build impactful initiatives, and eventually lead with compassion. An MBA will provide me with the tools to solve real-world problems at scale and make the world a better place for everyone.
