Profile

With an ongoing degree in Political Science and a fervent interest in societal dynamics, politics, and diplomacy, I am poised to embark on a promising career path in public service and education. As an aspiring government educator in India, my aim is to leverage my knowledge and creative skills to engage young minds and offer fresh perspectives on political and societal issues. With a penchant for sketching, painting, and video editing, I seek to develop compelling educational content and advocate for important causes. Armed with strengths in public speaking, leadership, and a commitment to lifelong learning, I am well-equipped for roles that involve interaction, instruction, and advocacy. My journey towards becoming a government educator or university lecturer is both attainable and commendable, driven by a passion for fostering informed and empowered citizens.
