

Hello, I am Anouska Rawat.

As a student who is currently pursuing economics, I have always been curious about the dynamics of organizational structures, finance, and people management. As a motivated and curious B.A Economics (Honours) student at Gargi College, I enjoy research and data analysis, especially when it helps measure impact or improve programs. I am deeply passionate about working in teams, communicating effectively, and contributing creative ideas. I bring with me a few key strengths:

- 1. Strong communication skills- I can express ideas clearly, whether through writing, presenting, or casual conversations. I also enjoy simplifying complex topics, especially for children or community audiences.
- 2. Curious and reflective mindset- I ask questions, observe closely, and try to understand situations deeply. This helps me approach social issues with empathy and thoughtfulness.
- 3. Research-oriented thinking- As an economics student, I'm trained to analyze data, notice patterns, and think critically about causes and solutions.

Experience

UNITY | Internship | October 15 – November 15, 2024

During this one-month internship, I worked on a range of organizational tasks including fund allocation, creating department-wise spreadsheets, and forecasting expenditure for setting up business models such as co-working or study spaces. This gave me a strong foundation in planning, coordination, and financial budgeting skills that are highly transferable and used in domains of human resources functions like planning and operations. Some of the projects included

 Pricing Digital Marketing

 Web Development - Sheet1

Some of my projects include-:

Creating a Performance Improvement Plan (PIP):

I successfully designed a structured PIP aimed at identifying the root causes of underperformance, aligning employee goals with organizational objectives, and improving accountability. The plan included measurable KPIs, progress timelines, and team discussions to ensure transparency and engagement. This experience helped me understand the significance of supportive feedback and structured growth pathways within a professional setting. The following link includes one such PIP I made–

RESEARCH REPORT

As part of the research team at Mystique Dates, I worked on a detailed research report from my perspective as a team member. This project allowed me to develop a deeper understanding of how to analyze market trends and study consumer behavior, specifically in the context of promoting a non-caffeinated, date seed-based coffee. Through this, I gained valuable insight into how a wellness-oriented product can be positioned in a competitive market and explored creative ideas for marketing and campaign planning. The experience sharpened my skills in brand analysis, audience targeting, and understanding the importance of aligning a product's message with evolving consumer preferences.
