During my one-month internship at Tarka Legal, I assisted in analysing a range of judicial decisions, helping to extract key legal principles and case outcomes. I was involved in researching and citing relevant precedents to support ongoing casework, which strengthened my understanding of legal reasoning and statutory interpretation.

A key highlight was my exposure to Public Interest Litigations (PILs), where I gained foundational knowledge of their structure, purpose, and societal impact.

Working under the guidance of experienced legal professionals deepened my interest in constitutional and public law. This internship provided me with a valuable insight into practical legal work and enhanced my research and analytical skills.
