ABOUT MYSELF

A dedicated and detail-oriented B.A. LL.B (Semester III) student with a strong academic foundation in core legal principles and a keen interest in advancing the rights and welfare of children. My academic journey and co-curricular involvement have nurtured a passion for advocacy and social justice, especially in areas where law intersects with child protection, education, and digital safety.

As Head of Creatives and Social Media at the Indira Jaising Legal Aid Clinic, I not only lead creative outreach and awareness campaigns but also take charge of documentation, research, and administrative coordination, ensuring the smooth execution of legal aid activities. These responsibilities have strengthened my organizational abilities, attention to detail, and understanding of the practical dimensions of legal support for marginalized communities.

In addition, serving as Design Head of the Magazine Committee has allowed me to combine creativity with accountability, fostering teamwork and effective communication. My volunteering experience across college initiatives and awareness drives has further refined my empathy, adaptability, and commitment to working for vulnerable groups.

I approach challenges with a balance of creativity, responsibility, and analytical insight, aiming to craft impactful solutions that protect and empower children, whether in physical spaces or the rapidly evolving digital world. Known for my hardworking nature, honesty, and strong research skills, I thrive in collaborative environments that prioritize meaningful change.

Eager to contribute to CRY's mission of ensuring every child's right to a happy, healthy, and creative childhood, I seek opportunities to integrate my legal training, research acumen, and communication skills into initiatives addressing child protection, education, and the safe use of technology for children.
