Title of the Story: Teenage girl Sunita spreads awareness about cleanliness in her village; her dedication brings hope for her education.

Location: Motihari, East Champaran

Project: CRY-AM

Child's Name: Sunita Kumari

Age: 20 years

Gender: Female

Father's Name: Ramkishun Sahni

Mother's Name: Sumitra Devi

Community: Backward Class (Pichhda Varg)

Village: Raghghat, Baradaha, Motihari, East Champaran, Bihar

Distance to Hospital:-The main hospital is 25 km away. There is a primary health center 7 km away, where health workers are sometimes available. For better treatment, the family has to go to the district hospital in Motihari or to private clinics. For buying medicines, they have to go to the market which is 2 km from the village.

About the Family:-Sunita has 3 brothers and 1 sister, and she is the fifth child among them. Her family belongs to a labour background and earns a living through farming and labour work.

Main Source of Income:-The family mainly depends on farming and labour work. They are among the poor families, and their financial condition is not good.

With the help of CRY-AM, 17 adolescent groups are being run through CHARDS. In our intervention area, sanitary napkin banks are being run in 18 villages/slums, where adolescent girls buy napkins at a very low cost and use them. The money collected from one group is used again to buy napkins and distribute them among all adolescent groups.

The Problem:-In our area, there is a village named Gadhat. In this village, people lack awareness about education and health, and old beliefs are deeply rooted. Due to frequent flooding, the problems related to nutrition and health, especially for women and children, are quite serious. It is very difficult to talk to rural women and adolescent girls about topics like menstruation and reproductive health, especially in areas where deep-rooted taboos and social restrictions exist. For example, during menstruation, they don't focus on cleanliness and feel ashamed to talk about it. The women and girls in Gadhat also ignore hygiene during their periods and still use old cloths, which leads to health problems. Sunita Kumari is from the same group. She is well-educated and wants to move forward, but even she lacked awareness. During a discussion, she shared that she also used cloth during her periods, which used to cause problems for her and other girls in the village.

project involvement (role of the project team):-sunita kumari has been involved in charads programs. since 2022, she has occasionally participated in meetings and activities. because of her good understanding and communication skills, she caught the attention of charads team members. she was told about the benefits of attending each meeting and was encouraged to join regularly.sunita has a strong influence among the village girls. she enjoys inviting others to the meetings and telling them about the benefits of the program.

- due to the positive impact of charads activities, sunita slowly started taking regular part in them. she encouraged other girls to participate as well. lalji from the charads team kept in constant contact with her and made her aware of upcoming activities.

•Positive change in attitudes through the project team:

In the meetings, girls are informed about education and health in simple ways. Sunita also started discussing these topics with her parents and neighbors. She used to share everything she learned about health and rights with other women and girls, which helped spread awareness.

•Bringing change in children's lives with the help of the project team: With the help of CHARDS team members, Sunita became more active, started participating in regular meetings, and became more aware of education and health. Because of this, she is now a role model for other girls.

The leader of a development group has been chosen as the manager of a "Napakin Bank" (a type of sanitary napkin bank) being run in her village group. She is doing this work and also helping her community. Today, in her village, she is the leader of the Mahangar Adolescent Girls Development Group and also runs the Napkin Bank.

Sunita now uses sanitary napkins herself and maintains cleanliness during her menstrual cycle. She also spreads awareness among girls and women in the community about using sanitary napkins and their benefits. She tells people how to avoid infections caused by dirty clothes during menstruation.

- Current situation of the girl:

Sunita wants to study further. She currently lives in her village and runs the Nayepankh Bank with the help of CHARDS (a local organization supported by CRY).

- CRY and CHARDS Involvement:

From 18th to 21st November 2024, the CRY team reviewed the activities of CHARDS through a yearly review meeting. During this meeting, they met Sunita and spoke with her. The CRY team was very impressed with Sunita's story. They found that many girls in her village are still not studying and want to drop out due to lack of support. But Sunita wants to study more and also help others.

The CRY and CHARDS teams have started a new initiative to support such girls. Under this, Sunita will be given a scholarship of ₹25,000, which can be used for her education-related needs like tuition, books, transport, etc. With this support, she will continue her education and also motivate other girls in her village to study and stay healthy during menstruation.

•(Next Step Update):

The next part of the story will cover the progress of Sunita's education and how her awareness journey continues.

CRY and CHARDS' Support:

On January 9, 2025, Sunita Kumari was connected to the Mukhyamantri Kanya Utthan Yojana (a government girls' welfare scheme). Her application process was handled by Sujeet Kumar, who also did her verification online.

Some issues were found during the verification process due to incorrect details in her bank account name. However, Ravi Kumar from CHARDS and Sujeet Kumar worked together to correct the issues in time and updated the necessary documents so her account could be successfully linked to the scheme.

In the meetings, Sujeet Kumar used to provide this information. Sunita's brother Ajay Kumar was also kept in regular contact about the process.

Date: March 30, 2025 – ₹25,000 was credited to Sunita Kumari's bank account. In the next meeting, this update will be shared by Sujeet Kumar to CHARDS.

Sujeet Kumar and Ravi Kumar encouraged Sunita in the group meeting to continue her studies. After her 12th results, preparations for her college admission began.
